

As the vacation season for many comes to a close and the holiday season will soon be beginning, I would like to take this opportunity to review the mission of the International Journal of Eye Banking with you and your role in making it successful.

Since the Eye Bank Association of America acquired the Journal, we have published 10 editions and over 50 articles, all to advance the delivery of ocular tissue for transplantation and the treatment and care of ocular transplant recipients. To continue to contribute to delivery, safety and ocular patient care, we need your input as professional practitioners in eye banking and ophthalmology.

We thank those of you who have submitted articles which we have published and encourage you to continue to do so. For those of you who have not yet submitted, consider the questions you have, the methods you have improved, the observations you have made, and the solutions you can share.

Now is the time to help the eye banking community to advance the field of eye banking by submitting to our journal, your research, reviews, cases, investigations and practices which will aid others through the ability to build on your information. For information about submitting to the Journal, please visit <https://eyebankingjournal.org/authors/submissions>.
